

Announcement of His Royal Highness Prince Aleksandar Pavlov Karageorgevich

ON DECLARATION OF SO-CALLED INDEPENDENCE AND INTERNATIONAL-LAW VIOLENCE OVER SERBIA

A centennial terror over Serbian people in Kosovo and Metohija has been surpassed today by this nonsensical independence supported by certain western democracy countries.

Today, when the European Union mocks its own principles and undermines its foundations, it is pointless to ponder upon the international law and justice. Today we should think about our people remaining prisoner on the territory of this most unnatural and illegal political monstrosity, ill-begotten in lawlessness, blood and terror. Today, and exactly today, we should direct our thoughts to returning of the stolen part of our territory.

I call upon all Serbs in Fatherland and Diaspora not to forget for one instant their brothers and sisters in Kosovo and Metohija, those brothers and sisters who are now dwellers of the only concentration camp in 21st century Europe. I call upon them to ease the grim days installed for those people with solidarity, love and prayer.

I call upon all political factors, especially those in power, in Serbia to do everything in their power, with due seriousness and responsibility, to protect their people and Sacred sites in Kosovo and Metohija.

Disgrace unveiling before our eyes is not the first gross injustice nor is it the first crime to be committed upon Serbian people. From this our experience we should be aware that Kosovo is not lost as long as it is a part of our being.

We have been losing Kosovo in our history and we have been returning to it. And we shall return once again with the strength of our Faith and defiance to crime and injustice, brought upon us today.

Christ is in our midst!

Paris, 17th February 2008

Prince Aleksandar Pavlov Karageorgevich
